Inside the National Railway Museum

The National Railway Museum, York, has an unparalleled collection of railway exhibits. From the earliest days of the railway pioneers to the very latest in railway technology, there's something for everyone. In this hour long video, Lucy Adlington takes you on a privileged tour of the Museum.

Discover how the railways evolved from the building of Rocket through to Mallard's world speed record and the high speed running of today's Channel Tunnel Eurostar and Japan's Bullet Train.

Enjoy some of the wonderful railway posters and photographs available behind the scenes in the archives and uncover some fascinating items of railway history within the Museum's stores.

Compare the intricacy of the London & North Eastern Railway's Dynamometer car with the splendour of the Edwardian Pullman coach and the functional simplicity of the Travelling Post Office.

Absorb yourself in The Works, with a close up of the Museum's own workshop, the fascinating galleries, a view of the modern working railway and the Aladdin's cave of collection items in The Warehouse.

As a finale, savour the opulent grandeur of the world's finest collection of Royal Coaches as we conclude this unique tour of the Museum.

NATIONAL
MUSEUM

Thank you for watching this NRM video. You can find out more about the National Railway Museum on our website at www.nrm.org.uk, or better still, you can visit us at:

The National Railway Museum,
Leeman Road, York YO26 4XJ
(telephone 01904 621261).

The National Railway Museum in York is the world's largest railway museum. Open 10am – 6pm every day (except 24 – 26 December), the national collection from Rocket replica to Mallard is all on display to the general public. The Japanese bullet train is also well worth a visit, evoking thoughts of the past, present and on to the future of rail travel.

The Works is the latest addition to the Museum and offers three new galleries to explore: The Workshop, The Working Railway and The Warehouse. Each one features rare and fascinating displays and objects from the national collection, many of which have never been seen before.

With the finest collection of Royal coaches in the world, dating back to the Victorian era, as well as interactive opportunities and a miniature railway, there is plenty to see and do for all ages. Enjoy the video, and we look forward to welcoming you in person soon.
